

HARVARD MEN BECOME WORLD'S FAIR ENTHUSIASTS AFTER VISITING THE GREAT EXPOSITION GROUNDS.

MEMBERS OF THE ASSOCIATED HARVARD CLUBS PHOTOGRAPHED ON THE STEPS OF THE ADMINISTRATION BUILDING YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Delegates of the Associated Harvard Clubs held their seventh annual meeting in St. Louis yesterday and closed the day's programme with a dinner at the Mercantile Club last night.

There were more than 200 Harvard men in attendance, and from early morning until late last night the visitors were moving with a strenuous gait.

At 10 o'clock the delegates boarded private trolley cars at the Missouri Athletic Club and were taken to the World's Fair grounds.

At 11 o'clock they arrived at the grounds and the next two hours were spent in an inspection of the Fair site and the buildings.

The visiting members to a man were delighted with what they saw. The Exposition far exceeds in size and beauty any idea they had formed of it.

Automobiles and carriages were furnished for the tour of inspection, but on account of the cold weather, most of the college men preferred going around on foot. They separated into groups, and the grounds and buildings thoroughly.

During their inspection, the Harvard yell was frequently heard in the big exhibit palaces and in various parts of the grounds.

A committee of about fifty St. Louis graduates of Harvard accompanied the visitors, and served as guides. The out-of-town men manifested the greatest interest in everything they saw, and were unwilling to leave the grounds until they had seen all the great features of the Exposition.

After leaving the grounds the party gathered at the Administration building where, at an informal reception, the members met President D. R. Francis, Secretary W. B. Stevens, Treasurer W. H. Thompson and other officials of the World's Fair. This was followed by a luncheon in the Administration building cafe.

President Francis, who acted as toastmaster, extended a cordial welcome to all sons of Harvard to the Exposition. He spoke of the important part taken by President Eliot and Professor Muensterberg in the preparatory work for the International Congress of Arts and Sciences which will be held in connection with the Fair.

MANY HARVARD YELLS.
President Eliot responded to the toast "Harvard University." Before he could begin his talk, however, there were several repetitions of the Harvard yell, given in honor of himself and Mr. Francis.

Doctor Eliot said that the visitors were more than pleased with the things they had witnessed in their tour through the grounds, and would carry home with them glowing accounts of the work done.

Speaking of the educational section of the Exposition, Doctor Eliot said he had never before known such careful and exhaustive preparations for an educational exhibit. It will attract and be of inestimable benefit to teachers from all over the world.

Judge Gavin of Indianapolis, Ind., president of the Associated Clubs, paid a glowing tribute to the World's Fair and Washington University. He said that when he and his fellow-club members returned to their homes they would at once preach the crusade, "On to St. Louis."

"We will all be propagandists," he said. "We will come back to St. Louis next year ourselves, and will bring along our own sons and our own cousins, and connections by marriage, to camp with friends who have homes here."

Chancellor W. S. Chapin of Washington University was the last speaker. He spoke of the close relation between the Exposition and the university of which he is head. The Exposition, he said, is a university of modern learning, by which all the world will be benefited.

At 2 o'clock the visitors departed for the St. Louis Club, where a business session was begun.

AT THE ST. LOUIS CLUB.
The meeting was called to order by the president, Judge Gavin, and a vast amount of routine business was transacted. Addresses were made by Judge Gavin, President Eliot, Samuel Hill of Seattle and R. J. Delano of Chicago. Mr. Delano is president of the Burlington.

The officers elected for the year were: President, Augustus E. Wilson of Louisville; vice president, Doctor J. W. Perkins of Kansas City; secretary and treasurer, Hugh McK. Landon of Indianapolis.

The banquet-room at the Mercantile Club was fairly jammed with Harvard men last night, all the members of the local alumni joining in the festivities. The chief address of the evening was made by President Eliot. The hall was brilliantly decorated, the colors of Harvard prevailing.

Those who attended the meeting were: Frank E. Gavin (1872), Indianapolis, Ind.; John W. Perkins (1872), Kansas City, Mo.; Ambrose Talbot (1873), Kansas City, Mo.; Frank Gordon (1877), Kansas City, Mo.; Louis H.
